

Jane Price

Director and Chair

Jane believes passionately that together we can create a society where everyone has opportunities to flourish and realise themselves - especially young people who look to adults to provide the context in which they can thrive. These values are put into practice in her role as Chair of the SUAS Board, and Jane has built a team of governors who share this sense of purpose and commitment.

A resident of Stratford, you are most likely to bump into Jane walking her dogs at the Welcombe Hills or at Stratford Town football club.

For the last 20 years she has run her own consultancy, working with leaders from across the world to transform their organisations, based primarily on how everyone in the organisation communicates together. Harder than it sounds, this requires changing engrained habits at work, and the beliefs and attitudes we hold about others. She has worked extensively in the public sector and has published about some of her innovative approaches to complex social issues. The more traditional things you might like to know, are that after a standard comprehensive education Jane has a Philosophy, Politics and Economics degree from Oxford University and an MA in Criminology. She is also a qualified social worker.
